Learning More Than Facts

by Heather Steinle

Friendships, academics, athletics, organizations, and religion are all various parts of college life. Texas Christian University prepares it's students for the real world in many ways other than just factual knowledge. A university is much more than classes, lectures and finals. Less than half of a college student's education takes place in the classroom. It is being with people, learning from your own mistakes, and maturing in many ways that constitutes a college education. Receiving practical experiences, forming one's own values and beliefs, learning to live and get along with many different types of people, building lasting friendships, and making life-time college memories are only some of the fantastic experiences that are a part of a college student's life.

It all goes by so quickly, that it is over before one knows it. Remember back to that first day as a college freshman; learning to live with a roommate, taking core classes, getting thrown into Frog Fountain, screaming at Horned Frog football games, and dancing the nights away at crazy theme parties, to that final year, that final day, when you're proud to say ... "I made it! and I'm a TCU alum!"

Relationships are an important part of college life.

This smashed car was one of the scare tactics used during the Alcohol Awareness Week and for many students it really hit home.

"Don't rain on our parade," says a Tri Delt as the rain poured down during the entire parade. Brand the Bears was also their logo for the Homecoming game against Baylor.

Purple Pride Reigns

by Heather Steinle

This has been the year of Purple Pride. With a Cinderella football team and a winning season, TCU, the city of Forth Worth, and even parts of the country have caught Frog Fever. With tee-shirts that say, "Brand the Bears," "Expressbusters," and the ultimate, "Hornbusters," to different versions of popular songs written about TCU's Horned Frogs, such as "the Horned Frog Kiss," and "Hornbusters," and finally the first sold out football game since 1957 Purple Pride blossomed everywhere!

Students, professors, alums, future frogs, and Fort Worth citizens came out to support the Frogs as was seen at one of the biggest pep rallies that TCU has ever had, the night before the TCU-Texas game. The Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston on New Year's eve was the icing on the cake as school spirit soared like it never had before at TCU. As Coach Jim Wacker said it on the Wacker Show, "We're unique. There's only one Horned Frog school in the world, and that's us, and we're darn proud of it!"

Participation Equals Fun

Participating in major events on the campus can add lots of fun and excitement to one's life. Most of the major events are sponsored by TCU's Programming Council, which consists of student volunteers. Howdy Week, the Activities Carnival, Parent's Weekend, Homecoming, and the All-Nighter Party are just some of the things that Programming Council sponsor.

TCU is quite unique in many of it's all campus events because of its smaller size. The all-school Homecoming party is just one event that is growing in popularity every year. Students working together and setting goals is what makes it happen.

All of the extra events help to make a student a well-rounded person. Contests and prizes stimulate lots of outstanding and creative projects for Homecoming. Participating in different events is just one more way in which a student can become a part of TCU as a whole.

Orientation Welcomes Freshmen

by Heather Steinle

Orientation was a time for confused and nervous freshman and transfer students to discover the tricks and trades of being a collegiate at TCU. It was a time to explore the school, ask questions and meet lots of other new students. Parents were also given information on everything from how to cope with a homesick child to send-homes.

One of the major tasks to be accomplished during three very busy days was registering. Students were aided by orientation counselors in deciding upon what classes to take and figuring out how in the world to schedule them! ID card photos were also taken at this time.

Besides filling out forms, attending sessions, and registering for classes, students had time for some fun. Games, an outdoor dance, tours of Fort Worth and a dinner with a slide show and skit by the orientation counselors were a few of the activities that gave everyone a chance to get better acquainted.

Orientation was a great way to start off one's years at TCU. It showed the personal and caring attitude for freshmen that only a small college such as TCU can give.

Howdy Week '84:

Starting Out With A Stampede

by Heather Steinle

The them of the 1984 Howdy week was Stampede '84, and most appropriately too. The week was filled with activities from Wednesday, August 22 through Wednesday, August 29. The week's agenda consisted of an activities carnival, which allowed students to become acquainted with campus organizations, a street party and a Rickel almost all-nighter.

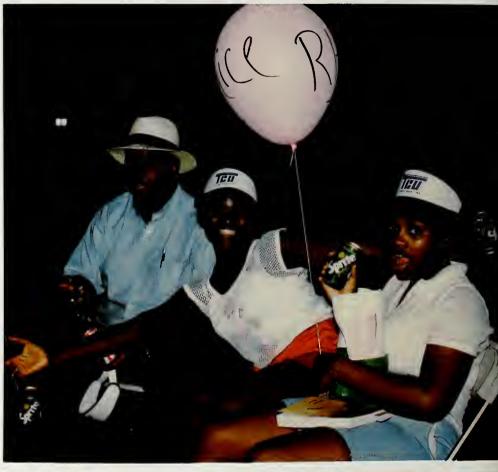

Some of the other events that started off the exciting year were the freshmen assembly, give-aways, a white water party, movies, and the long awaited Horned Frog Statue unveiling. The statue was given to the school by the student House of Representatives.

Howdy Week is a tradition at TCU that helps students to join campus organizations, meet new people and get involved in university life. It is a fun-filled tradition and definitely a super way to start off the year!

The Greek System Thrives

by Molly Eckert

Fall rush is an exciting and hectic week. It is the first week before school starts and everything is new and foreign, especially the system called Rush. Rushees are labeled with name tags that they are never supposed to take off during this one week. They are also armed with a Rush booklet and a PRC, Panhellenic Rush Chairman. The boys Rush system is also very organized, but does not get as involved because of the fewer number of boys.

Rushees go through several rounds of parties that help them get acquainted with the personalities of each Greek house. After each round, the Rushees must wait in anticipation to see which house invited them back. Following the last night of parties, the Rushees write down which house they prefer. Bid Day is the next day when the Rushees find out which house has asked for them as a member. The enthusiasm and business of this makes it's name - RUSH - an appropriate one.

Panhellenic Rush Committee members, Marie Jones and Amanda Fischer, prepare the paperwork for Rush week.

Boys going through Rush must also wear name tags.

Reviving Old Traditions:

Fans Explode With Spirit

by Leslie Custer

Homecoming ... a time of tradition, of looking back ... a time for the alumeni's return, the crowning of the queen, the football game ... a time of tradition. But more than one tradition was broken this year, including the so-called "losing" tradition of TCU's football team. A new note of excitement was injected as the Frogs compiled a winning record in what was probably the longest winning streak in the school's history, and the Purple Pride was never more evident.

"Welcome Home" signs appeared in every window, Wacker Clackers were evident all over, and the stadium was jammed with fans decked in purple and white. The Frogs continued their winning ways by defeating Baylor 38-28, and Kathy Sperry of Chi Omega and Rich Leonardo of Lambda Chi Alpha were crowned king and queen at halftime. In addition, Frog Follies was won by Chi Omega and Phi Delta Theta who also won overall homecoming.

Parents Throng To TCU:

Family Gatherings Successful

by Amy Tucker

The 1984 Parent's Weekend at Texas Christian University was a huge success, despite the rainy weather, thanks to careful planning by Chairman, Keri Dublin, and advisor, Carol Ann Lane.

The busy weekend opened with a concert in the Student Center as the TCU Jazz Band, directed by Curt Wilson, serenaded the audience from noon until 1:00 pm. Following the concert, parents visited the Welcome Booth where they signed the guest register and picked up buttons and bumper stickers. Friday evening was topped-off by a Talent Show MC'd by Todd Weiler. First prize of $100 went to David Cole for his juggling performance, Gina Lynch claimed second prize of $50 for her vocal rendition of "American Trilogy," and the $25 third prize went to Kevin Malloy for singing his version of "Mr. Cellophane."

Saturday morning, October 13, dawned rainy and cold, moving the Opening Session and Chancellor's Reception into the Student Center Ballroom. Here, the parents enjoyed a warm welcome from TCU faculty and administrators. Sara Smith (President of the Student Body) spoke about why students were excited to have their parents there that weekend. Welcome greetings were also given by Libby Proffer (Dean of Students), Chancellor William E. Tucker, and Coach Wacker expressed the importance of parental support, concluding with, "Horned Frogs like rain better than OWLS!"

From 11:00 am until 11:45, the Alumni Association sponsored four Mini-Lectures for the TCU parents. The Residence Halls had Open Houses and Luncheons from noon until 4:00 pm, with Coach Wacker on hand to meet the families at the Milton Daniel Residence Hall.

The picnic dinner by Frog Fountain was rained out and substituted by dinner in the main cafeteria, followed by entertainment in the Student Center lounge by the "a cappella" jazz group

"Spatz".

The 7:30 kick-off led to a 45-24 victory for the Horned Frogs over the Rice Owls. Coach Wacker later stated, "It was a good win. With the moms and dads here supporting the students and players, it was fun for all of us!" The game left everyone in high spirits for the gala event of the evening, The American Bandstand Dance. Parents, students, and faculty danced up a storm to music of the 50's and 60's, performed by the "Party Crashers" from Arlington. Said Freshman Edgar Landwehr, "We had a good time. The look of the 80's gave a new twist to the music of the 50's!'

Parent's Weekend wrapped up Sunday morning at 10:00 with a brunch sponsored by the International Student Association and Department of International Affairs. This provided an opportunity for parents to learn about the International program at TCU and meet and talk with International students.

Parent's Weekend was an eventful opportunity for parents to share part of their children's experiences at TCU. Not even Mother Nature could "dampen" the spirits of our parents' Purple Pride.

Convocation '84

Off To A Good Start

By Nancy Schmuhl

At Texas Christian University the traditional opening of the school year occurred on the day of Convocation. Each year the university selects a special person to deliver the Convocation address. This year Chancellor William E. Tucker gave the opening speech. Chancellor Tucker was very enthusiastic about the new year and stressed that it should be started with a positive attitude. He felt that we would have a winning school and so far T.C.U. has not disappointed him with our best football season in years. The 1984-1985 school year has indeed been proud and promising.

Providing Education

The administration, faculty and staff positions at Texas Christian University range from secretaries to professors to the Chancellor. All of these people are carefully selected to form the solid foundation of TCU.

These people help to uphold the Purple Pride of TCU in many different ways. Their support of and dedication to the TCU students are seen on the campus everyday. TCU the best it can be. Whether it is someone working with a student to help him get financial aid or a pre-major adviser counseling a very worried junior, these people display Purple Pride in their work. Many professors will go out of their way to help interested students.

The TCU administration, faculty and staff all have diverse backgrounds and positions, but they all work together to make

According to the Handbook for Tex as Christian University Faculty and University Staff, the job of Chancellor is defined as "... chief executive office of the University. This officer is charged with the operation of the institution under and in accordance with policies established by the Board." This includes recommending policies, assist ing in making policy decisions, appoint ing faculty and other key personnel, representing the University in various or ganizations, and assisting with fundraising. Obviously, the position of Chancellor requires a man who is both responsible and tireless to handle these tasks. In Chancellor William Tucker widely recognized around campus as Chancellor "Bill," TCU has found such

Born in North Carolina and having obtained a Ph.D. from Yale University Chancellor Tucker's list of qualifications is as impressive as it is long. He has been both the Assistant Dean and Dean of the Brite Divinity School and is currently the Moderator of all of the Disciple of Christ Churches in the country. After serving as a Dean, Tucker left TCU to assume the position of president at Bethany College. After that, he returned to TCU to become the eighth Chancellor of the University.

As Chancellor, Tucker is a taskmaster who expects much more from himself than anyone else does, but he doesn't expect more from those around him than they can give. He also has a very vivacious and pleasant, down-toearth personality that makes him easy to get along with. Tucker's attitudes and personality instill confidence in potential donors that their money is going toward a good cause. His friendly personality also helps. Many feel that Tucker is one of the best Chancellors TCU has ever had.

by Mike Schmitt

Texas Christian University has four Vice Chancellors assisting Chancellor Tucker in running the university.

The first is the Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, William Koehler. His main duty is to oversee all academic divisions and programs of the University.

The second is the Vice Chancellor for Student and Administrative Services, Howard Wible. He is responsible for all of the University's "support Units" *such as all Student and Administrative Services.

The third is the Vice Chancellor for Finance and Planning, E. Leigh Secrest. He is in charge of all financial aspects of the University such as setting financial policy and putting it into operation. He is also in charge of business operations and information systems of the University.

The fourth is the Vice Chancellor for University Relations and Development, Paul Hartman. He is responsible for all divisions of University Relations and Development. He is expected to work to continue the flow of gifts and endowments that aid the University. He also stimulated the participation of alumni to take a more active role in the maintenance of the University.

Directing Education

by Mike Schmitt

The Academic Deans of Texas Christian University are in charge of the six major academic divisions of the university. They are responsible for the operation of each college or school. Their duties include faculty appointments, promotion and tenure. They are also expected to prepare the budgets for their respective school and supervise the academic curricula. They decide how and for what purposes the facilities of their school are used. Another facet of the dean's duties is the supervision of student degree plans, what is required to earn a certain degree.

The Academic Deans for the colleges and schools of Texas Christian University are as follows: AddRan College of Arts and Sciences, Michael McCracken; Brite Divinity School, Jack M. Suggs; M.J. Neeley School of Business, Edward A. Johnson; School of Education, John Mangieri; Harris Collge of Nursing, Patricia Scearse; and School of Fine Arts, George Tade.

A Solid Foundation

by Mike Schmitt

There are three branches of employment at Texas Christian University; the faculty, the general staff and the university staff. The faculty is, of course, the professors. The general staff consists of the secretaries, maintenance, and food service employees. But by far the most varying and diverse group is the University staff, or the professional staff as it is also known. The University staff consists of employees that are required to have degrees in their field, sometimes even higher than a Bachelor's degree. There are two general divisions of the University staff, the administrative side and the professional side. The administrative side of the University staff is responsible for the administration of different aspects of the university. This includes people in Admissions, Personnel, Financial Aid and Discipline. The Professional division includes people in specially trained fields. This includes University Ministries, the doctors in the Health Center and the psychologists and counselors in the Counseling center.

There are many more people on the University staff, as it stretches into every corner of the University. It is safe to say that the employees of the University staff are one of the most important and intregal parts of the university.

Capturing Their Attention

by LaDonna Dale

One fascinating aspect of Texas Christian University is the faculty. The university has many devoted professors. Each is unique in his or her own way. These are faculty members who care about students and are interested in what they are doing. The professors often have a chance to develop friendly relationships with the students. Many appreciate students and will do anything to further their education. Of the entire faculty, three professors are especially admired by the student body.

After eighteen years in the economic department, Professor Charles Becker has come to like what he calls, the "kids," at TCU. The feeling is mutual. Dr. Becker's classes are worth attending because of his interesting teaching philosophy. He "likes the challenges of economics, which are endless." It is never just the same old thing. He continually brings up new and different material in each lecture to make them more interesting.

During Professor Claudia Camp's five years in the religion department, she has made a tremendous impact on her students also. She "really likes it when students ask serious questions" about the topic in discussion. She presents her lectures in a way in which students are open to ask intelligent questions. Her goal is to increase a student's ability to ask pertinant questions.

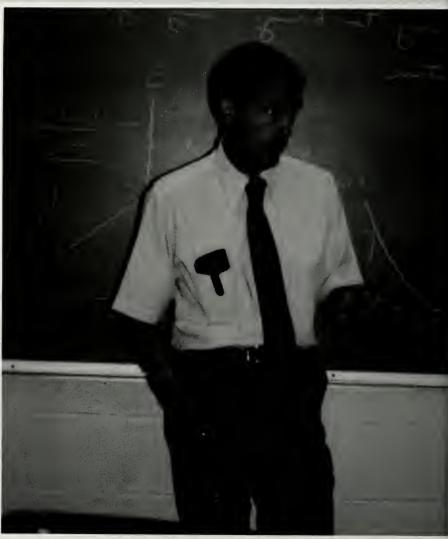

Professor Abo Habib is leaving the university after contributing three diligent years of accounting instruction. Habib loves the students and they admire him. He wants to do the best he can for his students. He has devoted much of his time to helping, not only his current and previous students, but any one else who comes to him with questions. He states, "I believe in high quality teaching," and that is what he tried to do. The student body will miss Professor Abo Habib and his contribution to the university.

Pursuing Excellence

At Texas Christian University, one way a student can distinguish him or herself is to participate in one of the many facets of the Honors Program. The university in turn bestows honors to these students deserving of special recognition.

TCU is also one of the few universities nationwide to have a Phi Beta Kappa Chapter on its campus.

To recognize freshmen's achievements, TCU has Alpha Lambda Delta, which accepts its initiates in their sophomore year. The fraternities and sororities also have an academic society called the Order of Omega.

Spring is a busy time of the year for everyone, especially Honor students. A convocation and banquet are held each April. The speaker at the Spring '85 convocation was anthropologist Donald Johansen, the discoverer of "Lucy." At the convocation Dr. Charles Becker, who was the Honors Professor for 1984, gave the address.

To end the year, a leadership reception was held to officially recognize the students who have made Texas Christian University especially proud.

Honoring Students

by Birdie Mellado

Every year the spring semester concludes with the University Awards Reception. The purpose of this gathering is to recognize outstanding student scholarship and service. This years reception, sponsored by Student Activities, was held at 4 p.m. on May 8, 1985 on the Sadler Hall front lawn. The coordinator of this event was Carol Ann Lane

After some opening remarks from Chancellor William E. Tucker, the presentation of awards began. Several awards were presented for athletic participation and excellence in the TCU intramural program and winners included: the Brite Divinity School, the Delta Gamma sorority, and the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. The award for outstanding Programming Council Chairman went to Chandler Smith, past Homecoming chairman. The Outstanding Greek Woman Award went to both Annie Conerly and Kathy Sperry of Kappa Alpha Theta and Chi Omega, respectively. Steve Kaster, of Lambda Chi Alpha, was awarded with Outstanding Greek Man. For the Juried Student Art Show Awards, Jill Hoffman won first place and Jeff Barton won Best of Show. The Dr. Reva P. Bell Service Award recipient was Rosena Clarke. Also, Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, Mortar Board, Who's Who, and Black Faculty and Staff Caucus Academic Achievement Awards were recognized. The David Kutinska R. A. Award was given to Mike Ramsey, and Keri Dublin received the Alann Bedford Award. The Outstanding Adviser-Sponsor award was given to the retiring assistant Dean of Students, Carol Adcock. Dean Adcock served for over thirteen years and was involved with Mortar Board and Alpha Lambda Delta. The Outstanding Student Leadership Awards were given to four repeating winners and fifteen new recipients. The ceremony concluded with Jack Larson's presentation to retiring Dr. Howard G. Wible, Vice-Chancellor for student affairs. He was given a globe for his future travel plans.

The University Awards Reception resulted in many deserving recipients being recognized for their hard work and subsequent achievements. TCU should be proud to have so many students who fulfill these superior qualifications.

Successful Freshmen

Achievement Is Recognized

by Nancy Schmuhl

During the spring semester, TCU sophomores are invited on the basis of their freshman academic record to become members of Alpha Lambda Delta, Alpha Lambda Delta honors high scholastic achievement in the first year of college. A perspective member needs an overall grade point average of 3.5 or above to be initiated into this honorary organization.

The faculty liason is Carol Adcock, the senior adviser is Charles Becker and David Minter is the junior adviser. This year seventy-three people were asked to join this organization. Early in the spring semester, officers were elected. The officers chosen are: Mike Hanson, President; Lesley Cook, Vice-President; Alan Salts, Treasurer; and Janet Veeninga, Secretary.

In addition to being an honorary organization, Alpha Lambda Delta also held a skating party at the Tandy Center in March. This gave new members a chance to get to know each other. Then, on April 9th, 1985 the new members were initiated into this national organization. Of this prestigous organization, President Mike Hanson stated that, "It's an opportunity to meet people and get recognized for excelling academically." Indeed it was an honor to be named to this select group of students.

Senior Leaders Selected

Thirty-Four Are Initiated

by Birdie Melado

Mortar Board, a senior honor society, selected thirty-four students for membership in the Ampersand Chapter of Mortar Board at Texas Christian University this year. Some requirements for membership were a high academic record and outstanding leadership qualities. Furthermore, a strong commitment to a service related organization was encouraged. The faculty sponsors were Carol Adcock, Walton Rothrock, and Pat Paulus.

This year's initiation took place in the Robert Carr Chapel on Sunday, April 14, 1985 at 2:00 p.m. Following this initiation, a reception was held in the Faculty Center in Reed Hall.

To raise money, Mortar Board sponsored a China survey in which both students and faculty participated. For each survey taken, Motar Board received one dollar from Royal Daulton.

Some special aspects of TCU's chapter are Dottie Phillips being on the National Board and Cori Crawford receiving the Carol Adcock Chapter Service Award for outstanding service.

Phi Beta Kappa:

National Group Honors Elite

by Nancy Schmuhl

Phi Beta Kappa is the oldest national honorary fraternity in America and was founded in 1776. This year TCU's chapter invited twenty students to become members-in-course for the Spring of 1985. To be eligible, a junior must have had a grade point average of 3.9 or above and a senior needed a 3.7 or above. In addition, seventy-five percent of the prospective members' courses must have been in the liberal arts. Also, science, math and a second year of a foreign language were required.

This year's past president of Phi Beta Kappa, Dr. Don Jackson of the Political Science Department, announced the members-incourse at the Spring Honors Convocation. They were: Juniors: Tamra Martin; Seniors: Sherwood Brown, Debra Browning, Lisa Burkhalter, Marcia Cox, Marie DiSante, Tim Dowling, Lisa Hermanstorfer, Elizabeth Jekot, Maureen Kenny, Thomas Lippy, Kathleen Loose, Holly Marshall, Mary Martin, Mark Matney, Laura Matysek, Barry Preston, David Schwartz and Paul Slezak.

Texas Christian University is one of the few select institutions nation-wide to have a Phi Beta Kappa chapter and TCU is very proud of these students and their outstanding academic accomplishments.

Greek Leaders Work Together

Order of Omega is an honorary national organization for juniors and seniors who participate in Greek fraternities and sororities. Selection is based on chapter service, campus involvement, service to the community and scholarship. TCU's chapter of Order of Omega publishes Greek Calls, (the Frog Calls of Worth Hills), and sponsors Greek Week.

Greek Week begins with an All-Greek barbeque in the Worth Hills courtyard. Other events for the week include a faculty-staff wine and cheese party, an all-campus party, jersey day, a Greek Olympics and an Awards Banquet.

The officers this year are: President, Kathy Sperry; Vice-President, Steve Kaster; Secretary, Annie Conerly; and Treasurer, Jeanie Schwartz. The advisers of Order of Omega are Anne Trask and Troy Moore.

Producing well-rounded students

"You get out of it what you put into it," is an often heard, very true phrase. A person's years at college are like that too. Joining organizations and clubs are ways to get involved and be a part of a university. Groups at TCU offer everything from fellowship to academics to hobbies. Whatever one's interests are there is a group for them at

TCU. Student government, the sailing club, professional fraternities and social fraternities and sororities are just a few of TCU's organizations.

Being a part of a group teaches people different skills than those taught in the classroom. Leadership and organization are iust two of the many things that can be learned.

TCU organizations dedicate lots of time and energy for the improvements of the university. ROTC was instrumental in getting an escort service started and the House of Representatives allotted funds for campus improvements. These are just a few examples of the roles that organizations play at TCU.

House Of Reps Keeps Busy

by Jack Larson

The House of Student Representatives is the official voice of the student body and plays a major role in policymaking. Voting members of the House are elected by their residence halls or through town student elections. There are six standing committees: Academic Affairs, Student Concerns, University Relations, Permanent Improvements, Elections and Finance.

The House controls a budget of over $150,000 a year. This money is used to fund the standing committees, university retreats, student lobbying, extramurals, Programming Council and various other campus activities.

In the past year, the House was responsible for renovations in the Student Center reading room and the Rickel Center lounge. In addition, they added the Horned Frog Sculpture to Reed-Sadler Mall. The House also participated in the student TEG (Texas Equilization Grant) lobbying efforts in Austin and the TCU football ticket policy revisions.

The officers for the fall semester were: Sara Smith, President; Wayne Watson, Vice-President in charge of programming; Mike Johnson, Secretary; and Dana Reeves, Treasurer.

The officers elected at the end of the fall semester will serve through the fall of 1985. They are: Jack Larson, President; Heatherly Vermillion, Vice-President; Keri Dublin, Vice-President in charge of Programming; Beth Hamilton, Secretary; and Rusty Rhodes, Treasurer.

The 1984-85 Student Body officers are: Jack Larson, Wayne Watson, Mike Johnson, Dana Reeves, Sara Smith and Muffy Hodges.

Performers And Parties Are Planned

Council Organizes Activities

by Susie Steckner

TCU's Programming Council sponsors an annual Almost All-Night Party and this year it revolved around a 50's theme. The party was complete with a live band, Vince, Vance and the Valiantes, a buffet, a casino and a juke box.

Besides planning parties, Programming Council fulfilled the intellectual needs of the campus also. Speakers such as Geraldine Ferraro, Kurt Vonnegut and Yolanda King were brought to the campus.

They also brought performers Second City, Dave Rudolph and Joe King Carasco to keep students entertained.

These events were just a few of the many activities planned by the Programming Council. With such a wide variety of events, most students could find something appealing to them. Whether it be to fulfill an extra-credit assignment for class or to just get together with friends for a good time and some entertainment, the Programming Council covered virtually every aspect of student's "demand."

"We tried to plan student-oriented activities. Our intentions were to supply events that would bring about a type of campus unity; I think that we succeeded," explained Performing Arts Council member Lori Keller.

Non-denominational groups included the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Campus Crusade and Icthus. These groups met once each week for songs, fellowship and Bible study. Young Life leadership was also found on campus which trained leaders to work with Young Life clubs in area high schools.

Circle-K:

Service In The Community

by Marla J. Pytcher

"Unity through Service" is the theme of the International Circle-K organization. For the TCU club, sponsored by the University area Kiwanis club, this is its third year.

The Circle-K organization is a collegiate club concerned with the needs of its community. The TCU chapter, with its 17 members, recognizes these needs and is involved with several projects.

Members volunteer their time at John Peter Smith, a Fort Worth County hospital, and find it very rewarding. "I feel satisfied," says Connie Allen, president of Circle-K, "knowing that some of my personal time has been spent helping others."

P.U.P. - — "Puppies Uplifting People" is a favorite among the members. Puppies are taken from the animal shelter at the Humane Society and are brought to area nursing homes where the club's members visit with the people and let them hold and play with the homeless puppies.

The Circle-K club, along with the Kiwanis club, is in charge of SPRUCE—an emergency shelter house for troubled children. Each week, goodies are brought to the children and members play games with them. The Circle-K club seeks to encourage these children until further help can be found.

The Circle-K club meets weekly in the student center. Allen says that she hopes to see membership grow so that more projects can be added to serve the community.

Helping new members are Judy Beckner, and Jeff Dupas.

A typical student is found hesitantly eating his breakfast while gaping at the TCU Daily Skiff. What would we do without the daily Frog Forecast or Bloom County to greet us each morning?

To the average student, the production of this vital source of information goes unheeded. But to the students, faculty, and staff writing the stories, reporting the news, developing film, their day is not finished until the completed Skiff is ready for print.

The Skiff, published Tuesday through Friday, is TCU's own newspaper. In it, we are kept informed with world news, as well as the latest events of TCU and its community. Various opinions are displayed and advertisements are found throughout.

Although supplying information to the student body is the objective of this newspaper, Skiff serves another purpose. Producing the Skiff—reporting, writing, copyediting, advertising, etc. is an excellent source of work experience for those interested in these fields.

Image, another student publication, is a magazine published twice a semester. This magazine, full of student's ideas and creations, won second place for best all — around student magazine in the Mark of Excellence contest, sponsored by the Society of Professional Journalists/Sigma Delta Chi.

Like The Skiff, Image depends on advertisements for the expense of publication. Due to the increase in advertisements, Image is now able to publish more student compositions and articles.

Many people take The Image and especially The Skiff for granted, but they are a vital part of college life.

The paste-up for the Image Magazine takes many hours.

Groups Pay "Lifetime Dividends"

Career Opportunities Offered

by Susie Steckner

Army ROTC at Texas Christian University has been a tradition since 1951. The Military Science Department is staffed by regular Army professionals-officers and sergeants-whose instruction provides students with the opportunity to receive regular Army Reserve commission as a second lieutenant.

The curriculum consists of eight courses taken during four years. Within the first two years, students learn skills such as pistol and rifle marksmanship, map reading, and rapelling. Students make no commitment until their junior year. At graduation, successful Army ROTC graduates are appointed to the grade of second lieutenant in either the regular Army, Army Reserve, or National Guard by the President of the United States. "The training provided by the Army ROTC pays lifetime dividends because integrity, discipline, responsibility, and courage are traits that ensure success in any endeavor," Lieutenant Colonel Bruce Stacy explains.

Events during the year included a formal Dining-In, a Trinity River Raft Race, a Military Ball, and trips to Fort Hood and Fort Sill. The Army ROTC color guard presented the colors at TCU football games while the drill team marched in Homecoming and Veterans Day parades. The TCU Ranger Unit rapelled down the football stadium wall and conducted 15 mile marches.

The Air Force Department on campus is also staffed by professionals, meeting the same qualifications academically as all faculty members. The goal of the program is to teach professionalism; the Air Force is not only a means of defense for the country but a career for many.

The club is involved with an ongoing activity of recycling newspapers and cans. The money received from these projects are used to support conservation and ecology sources, as well as hunger issues.

They are the original founders of hunger week, which now has become a campus-wide project, and have donated money to such organizations as "Save the Whale" and "Friends of the Earth."

They also sponsor the voter registration drive for low-income and minority voters and are active in several campus projects.

The Bryson Club was the first club founded on the campus of TCU and is made up of a select group of sophomores, juniors and seniors who are interested in the creation of literature.

The 40 members who are selected upon invitation encourage other students to create their own literature by sponsoring a "Creative Writing Week," a week when students have a chance to get their creations published.

"I'm proud to be part of this group," said Beth Hamilton, president of the club. "Its members represent diverse student backgrounds, attitudes, talents and personalities which have helped me, as a person, understand what working and living together are all about."

The TCU Sailing Club was an informal organization which gave students a chance to have fun learning to sail and to race.

The club was involved with the Fort Worth Boat Club where the Sailing Club members had the chance to grain practical experience by crewing.

The Sailing Club originated as a noncompetitive organization but it is now striving to compete in some upcoming races and hope to win some trophies to represent TCU.

"The club is a great way to meet interesting people," said Lynn Casey, president of the club. "We have several members from around the world and we've really enjoyed the year."

Organizations Serve Useful Purpose

Groups Help Unite Students

by Susie Steckner

"I think that Black Student Caucus (BSC) is a worthwhile organization; it's a way for students to get together to do things that they can't do by themselves," explained Annette Blanton, BSC member. The group works toward uniting blacks all over campus. Together they strive to excel in the areas of scholarship, leadership and community service. Their service work included helping with the Hunger and Alcohol Awareness Weeks and the Phone-A-Thon.

This year they donated the money they earned to a scholarship for a minority student on campus. Money making activities included Bake Sales, speakers, Black Awareness Week and their second annual jelly bean count contest.

Like the BSC, the International Student Association (ISA) is also an organization geared toward uniting students. Lahib Jawdat, a student from Iraq, explains that because each culture is so very different that being alone is very difficult. ISA allows international students to make friends quickly and provides the chance for interaction with American students. International Student Week provided the greatest opportunity for this interaction.

Fraternities Educate

Speakers Share Knowledge

by Amy Tucker

The Delta Sigma Pi business fraternity has been active on the TCU campus since October, 1959. The fraternity is open to all finance, journalism, economics and business majors. This year members taught business classes for Junior Achievement. They taught elementary school students some basic skills in marketing and management. The fraternity did other community service projects such as a fundraiser for the March of Dimes and an Easter Egg Hunt for the All Church Home. Their biggest project was the annual Business Week. Professionals from the business world came to speak on the problems, benefits and important aspects of business. This year some of the speakers were Ross Perot, Eddie Chiles and Governor Bill Clements.

Members of the Beta Alpha Psi accounting fraternity must complete Financial Accounting (2153), Managerial Accounting (2163) and Intermediate Accounting (3254), as well as meet the GPA requirements, to become a member. There are currently 30 members who participate in the field trips to different financial institutions and accounting firms. Their major service project was the VITA (Volunteer Income Tax Assistance) Program. For one week each spring the members donate their skills to help students and faculty file their tax returns. The fraternity also invites business professionals, bankers and stock brokers to speak at their meetings.

TCU's chapter of Phi Chi Theta fraternity is mainly concerned with promoting women in business. Members must be at least a second semester freshman in a business or economics major with an over-all GPA of 2.2 or better. This years members participated in the TCU National Phonathon. They often have local business people and alumni speak about getting involved in the business world and their experiences.

Internships Are Found

Projects Continue

by Amy Tucker

The TCU Ad Club is a part of the Alpha Delta Sigma National fraternity. Members may be majors in advertising, public relations, journalism, marketing, radio-tv-film, commercial art or business. The students participate in field trips to the Iralgo Specialty Advertising Company and other local businesses. Their major project in the spring was preparing a campaign to present at the American Advertising Federation Student Advertising Competition.

The Public Relations Student Society of America is similar to the TCU Ad Club. All participants receive a magazine which President Wendy Horsford says, "Is really beneficial to public relations majors and people interested in interning." North Texas State holds conventions every two months which TCU students were invited to attend. Members met representatives and some secured internships at these conventions. The members mainly went on tours of local businesses and heard the businesses' PR representatives. They also had a program known as ProAm which enabled the entire chapter to work with an agency or company for a day.

The Alpha Epsilon Rho (AERho) Fraternity does not currently require a student to be a radio-tv-film major, however, they must maintain a 3.0 GPA in their RTVF courses to remain a member. The fraternity had speakers in from the professional market, including Andy Barber from KAFM and former TCU student Phil Crow from Channel 11. The club also helps TCU and the community plan and tape video projects and in the past, they have even recorded concerts for the music department.

TCU also has a chapter of the American Marketing Association (AMA). They had a speaker every two weeks from various firms. AMA offered a program called Juniors Night which helped all juniors to find and begin internships. They also had Shadow Day which was an opportunity for a chosen student to work with a Xerox salesperson for a day. Their biggest function for the second year in a row was Career Night. Thirteen local and national companies sent representatives to meet at the Colonial Country Club and talk with students about their different industries. President Brad Able said, "Besides looking good on your resume, membership in AMA gives interested students a little notch above everyone else in the marketing field."

Horned Frog Pride Sweeps Campus

Clubs Catch Spirit

by Rachael Barron

If one was around TCU long enough before, they would know that there was something different about life on campus during the 1984-85 school year. Something called Horned Frog Pride swept the campus and by the middle of the football season, had spread throughout the entire city of Fort Worth. Leading the crusade were several organizations who cheered all the teams on to victory.

The Show Window Of TCU, the band, put in many extra hours to make this year one of its most successful ever. They practiced five days a week during football season to put together the halftime shows for the Horned Frog football games. Under the direction of Dr. Robert Blanton, assistant Linda McDavitt, and Drum Major Steve Linton, they also played at pep rallies and basketball games. Also part of the halftime show were the flag corps and the feature twirlers, Betty Etier and Lyn Broom, who performed routines choreographed to the band's marching music. Featured each week were the Showgirls, led by Captain Betty Richardson. They cheered the teams on from the sidelines and danced at the halftime of both football and basketball games.

Another important group was the Purple Hearts. Each week these students decorated the football locker rooms. Each member was also assigned a player and would decorate his dorm room door for away games.

Emphasizing spirit at the games was a new organization called Sport and Spirit. They made crash signs, formed victory lines at the start of home games, and sat together as a cheering section to show the Frogs that they were behind them.

Something To Cheer About

by Rachael Barron

"Riff, Ram, Bah, Zoo!" It was the spirit of that old cheer that made the TCU cheerleaders what they were this year. Just as stunned by this year's chronic case of Frog Fever as everyone else, they led some of the most spirited crowds TCU has seen in a long time. They picked up quickly on the spirit triggered by our unbelievable football team and carried that inspiration right on through the Killer Frog's outstanding basketball season. "It was a good year to cheer, but the credit really belongs to the fans for becoming involved and supporting the team in their unbeleeevable year," said sophomore Char-lie Nabors. The fourteen member squad, along with that adorable mascot, Superfrog, was on the sideline at every football game and at all home men's and women's basketball games. The squad consisted of seven women and seven men, grouped into partners, and Superfrog, played by DeWayne Roe and Tommy Crouch. # Performing To New Heights

The Feature staff chose "Proud and Promising" to be this year's theme for the book. In other sections we've shown how the feeling has pervaded the various aspects of life at TCU. In no area, however, was the phrase more applicable than in sports.

Traditionally, TCU has not been known for its sports program. But things began to change this fall as the football team reached heights that have not been paralleled here in over 25 years. As a result, TCU earned national recognition which many feel was partly responsible for the dramatic increase in freshmen applications.

Football may have stolen the spotlight this year, but this is not to imply that the other sports were any less vital to the university. TCU had many talented athletes playing in such NCAA sports as basketball, track, baseball, golf, tennis, soccer, and swimming.

Almost half of the students got involved with sports by participating in the intramural program which offered both single-sex and coed competition in a total of twelve different sports. Students interested in sports other than those offered through NCAA or intramural competition were able to form clubs and participate in extramural sports such as lacrosse, wrestling, tae kwon do, and sailing, just to name a few.

t began as Proud and Promising, but quickly became the year of the Cinderella Frog. It was the year in which the excitement of college football returned to Texas Christian University and Fort Worth. It was a year of accolades, slogans, and statistics. In rolling to eight wins, the Frogs amassed more victories in 1984 than they had in the last four years combined.

mates and the coaching staff. They are the ones who are reponsible for the opportunities I've had."

Oh, yes! The coaching staff and the "Unbeleevable" National Coach-of-the-Year Jim Wacker were the ones who made it all happen. They brought the Horned Frogs back from being the joke of the Southwest Conference to become a real contender in just two years. Wacker's "smash-mouth" brand of football was the topic of many top publications and talk shows throughout the country and was even said to have a cult following in New York.

Although the season ended in disappointing loss in the Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston to West Virginia, 31-14, it is indeed a promise of things to come and that TCU will once again be a force to be reckoned with in the world of college football.

ntramurals at TCU provided yet another way for students to become involved with campus life and to get a little exercise while they're at it.

There are four intramural leagues: women's, men's independent, coed and fraternity. Twelve sports, with a total of 18 different events, were offered. The most popular ones were the team sports such as flag football, soccer, volleyball,

Presenting The Frogs

One of TCU's most distinguishing features is its friendly people. TCU takes pride in this virtue and many choose TCU because of it.

The students this year displayed their purple pride by getting "the wave" started at football games and by showing record attendance at pep rallies. Efforts were made by the House of Representatives' Permanent Improvements Committee to show our pride through the Horned Frog statue in the Reed-Sadler Mall.

Diversity is another feature of TCU students.

Students are from 60 different countries and almost all of the 50 states. They range in religious beliefs from Baptist to Methodist to Disciples of Christ, and the list continues. There are whites, blacks, mexicans, Texans and Yankees. The athlete, as well as the musician and the scholar, all have a place in the TCU community. Working, living and growing together is what it's all about.

The people and the purple pride here at TCU are indeed very special.

Annually, Colby Residence Hall sponsors a Halloween party for the children of TCU faculty members. Besides a contest between the hall's wings for the best halloween decorations, many residents masquerade in halloween attire and hand out candy to the visiting children. Another activity that the entire residence hall does on an annual basis is having at least one mixer with a male residence hall, and many of the different wings in Colby hold separate mixers with other residence halls more frequently. In addition, there is a reception held in Colby every year during Parent's Weekend to acquaint parents with the residence hall and the girls.

Colby is also very active in campus activities, such as the spirit contest during the football season. The girls made spirit banners for the games and to decorate the TCU campus. Colby Residence Hall is a very fun and exciting place for a girl to live her first year at TCU.

by Sarah Smith

"Sherley Residence Hall was the housing unit for approximately 350 women on campus. Sherley's residents were of varied scholastic classification, ranging from freshmen to seniors, although about half of the population of Sherley was freshmen. In addition to having a varied age group, Sherley

Residence Hall was also noted for its diversity of personalities. Many of Sherley's residents were active in a number of extra-curricular activities such as various athletic teams and Greek sororities. There was a wide scope of interests pursued among residents in Sherley, from things such as the swim team to student government.

The Hall Council board, which made governmental decisions and planned activities for the residence hall, was elected annually. The Hall Council, as well as the staff of Sherley, worked along with the new Hall Director, Sandra Holt, to maintain Sherley Residence Hall as "a distinctive living opportunity on the TCU campus."

"Waits is a place where you can be yourself," stated Amanda Tull, Waits Hall Director. Waits hall was one of the womens' upperclass residence halls that held about 220 women this year. "The staff and hall council provided programming designed to meet a variety of needs, in addition to creating a studious setting," commented Stacy Cockrell, the hall president. Waits Hall, beyond a doubt, was one of the most physically attractive halls. The building was provided with a recreation room, T.V. lounge, sun deck, snack machines and a well equipped laundry room. Waits' social activities were numerous this year, including a picnic with Milton Daniel and an all-night movie party with Clark. Many of the rooms in Waits were arranged into suites. This allowed residents with the choice of having a suite or not. Waits Hall considered itself to be one of the most diversified upperclassmen halls. #### Foster Hall

by Patrick Laraby

The highest dorm G.P.A. on campus and strictly enforced "quiet hours" were two characteristics used by residents to describe Foster Hall. The women of Foster had a reputation for academic excellence having over a 3.2 G.P.A. for the entire dorm last year. Even though the hall enforced strict quiet hours, the residents had plenty of opportunities to have fun by making use of the game room, T.V. lounge and sun deck. There were also several study areas in the building for the convenience of the residents.

"Foster Hall is a place where you can be the best you can be," commented Emma Baker, Foster's Hall Director. "Foster offers a place where you can develop yourself into the person you want to be," stated Parris Barker, hall president. One of the more pertinent aspects of Foster was that it offered a sense of unity between residents. Most of Foster was arranged into suites, which allowed students to develop and grow with each other. Foster's lobby was recently remodeled and was considered very nice by everyone.

"Foster is definitely not for everyone, but if you feel you fit in, Foster has a lot to offer," exclaimed Lisa Deccer, a Foster resident.

Cute girls, yet career oriented, and learning with a purpose ... No, I'm not refering to Loni Anderson, and Linda Carter in their new series, "Partners in Crime," but to the women of Jarvis Residence Hall.

The ladies of Jarvis Hall have the privilege of being located near the center of action on the TCU campus. The Student Center and Reed Hall are located on one side of the residence hall, and Ed Landreth Auditorium is on the other side. Across the street from Jarvis are the Moudy Building, the Brite Divinity School, and the library. This relatively central location allows the women of Jarvis Hall easy and quick access to most of TCU's social and academic facilities.

In the past few years, the women of Jarvis Hall have been involved in the Tom Brown - Jarvis project, a project which closely coordinated the two halls in campus, social, and civic endeavors. However, due to recent problems with the project, it has been discontinued. Even with this setback, the women of Jarvis still maintain a high level of involvement in many campus organizations and activities.

Tom Brown Hall

by Bob Jones

What is the first thing that comes to your mind when you think of Tom Brown Residence Hall? Spacious rooms, a quiet study area, and comfortable lounges? Well, maybe, but what Tom Brown is really known for is the type of men that inhabit its walls each semester.

Tom Brown is well known for having one of the most active student led programs on campus. These programs, although run by the students, are supervised under the watchful eye of their hall director, Jim Moore.

Until this past year, the men of Tom Brown Hall have been closely associated with the ladies of Jarvis Hall. However, due to recent problems with the coordination of the halls, the Tom Brown - Jarvis program was discontinued. This small set back did not dampen the spirit of the Tom Brown men as they continued to be involved in all aspects of campus activities, as well as intramurals and community organizations

Clark Hall

by Patrick Laraby

Named after Addison and Randolf Clark, the two founders of T.C.U., Clark Hall offered new and returning students a unique living experience in an assorted community of fraternity men, independents, internationals and male students from every part of the United States. "Clark offers students a place to experience college life in a diverse setting," exclaimed Mark Hernandez, Clark's Hall Director.

One of the factors that allowed Clark to be so diverse was that one-third of the dorm were freshman. This permitted freshmen to share new experiences and make friends while living in an upperclassmen atmosphere. The upperclassmen who occuped the first and second floors were provided with a residence hall that not only stressed academics but also maintained social opportunities one could not complain of. "We've had a Bar-B-Que with Shirley, a pizza party with Jarvis and even an all-night movie party with Waits," commented Cecil Jones, President of Clark's hall council.

Clark men were also able to boast of a strong intramurals program. The intramural football team, Clarkmen I, went all the way to the Independent Championships. "Through our football team we were able to show that our dorm is unified enough to work together as a group and have a great time doing it," remarked Steve Wacker, an F.P.A. (Freshman Programming Advisor). Clark had enough activities planned to allow its residents to have a good time, yet maintained an atmosphere where academics took priority.

Pete Wright Hall

by Ed Gough

Pete Wright Residence Hall, affectionately known as "Pete's Palace," housed approximately 160 freshmen men. Not only was Pete Wright a place for these young, first-year college men to live, but it also offered experiences that they will cherish for the rest of their lives.

Pete Wright was unique in the fact that only freshmen lived there and they all went through the same difficult period of adjusting to college life together. Many close friendships started in this residence hall.

Pete Wright was also a place to become active in the university itself. The hall was very involved with the House of Representatives.

To some people Pete Wright Residence Hall only served as a place to live for a semester or two, but to many others, it was the best way to kick off their college years.

Milton Daniel Hall-

by Peter Benson

Milton Daniel is one of the largest and most popular residence halls on campus and houses approximately 350 men. The majority of Milton Daniel is occupied by the athletic teams which are divided into sections throughout the building according to their team; the remainder of the rooms are given to students who apply early for housing.

This residence hall is commonly referred to as "The Milton Hilton" because of its new furniture and carpeted rooms and hallways. Three and four men rooms are found on each section, yet each room is very spacious.

When entering the Milton Daniel lobby you will discover a new color t.v. which was paid for by Milton Daniel and its residents through a fund that has been collected from the new residents at the beginning of the fall semester. This t.v. adds to the already distinguished atmosphere that Milton Daniel holds.

Several Milton Daniel residents gather in the lobby.

Residents relax by playing pool in the lounge.

Brachman Hall-

by David Lynch

Brachman Hall was named in honor of Etta and Solomon Brachman and is located in the Worth Hills area. It houses approximately 165 men and women who are a part of the Brachman Living Learning Program. Upon walking through the front doors of Brachman Hall, one knows that they are in a special place. The friendly atmosphere and united community are some of the reasons that students want to live there.

Brachman Hall is the only co-ed residence hall at TCU. It is also very unique in its diverse ethnic and racial mixture. Caucasians, Negros, Mexicans, males, females, Greeks, and Independents all live together under one roof. Another special feature of Brachman is that it is the only place on campus where married couples attending TCU can reside.

Brachman Hall is much more than simply a residence hall, it has a Living Learning Program. At least one class in each of the basics (Economics, English, Math, Religion, Speech, and Psychology) was offered in Brachman's first floor classrooms. The commitment to excellence by the students and staff brings the best of both worlds with its academic and social involvement. The Brachman program is student-led under the direction of Norma Schram.

Wiggins Hall

by David Lynch

Wiggins Hall is one of the newest and most popular residence halls on campus and houses approximately 150 upper-classwomen. Since it is located in the Worth Hills area right between all of the fraternities and sororities, many of the women who live there are active in social sororities. Due to the unique location and the fact that the women belong to various sororities, some women have been known to go to extremes just to try and get a room in Wiggins. Last year, many women camped out all night in the pouring rain just to get on the list to get into Wiggins for the next year. Since Wiggins only houses 150 students and those students who already live there have priority, it is very difficult to get a room in Wiggins.

Wiggins Hall is named for Mary Lipscomb Wiggins who received her B.A. from Add Ran Christian University in 1896, six years before the name was changed to Texas Christian University. The Hall Director is Jenny Smith.

Hanging out of their window in Wiggins are Kelly Kopp, Lisa Jacobus, and Holly Samuels.

Working Together

by Ed Gough

Both the Interfraternity Council (IFC) and Panhellenic are extremely intricate parts of TCU's strong Greek system. These groups act as the voice for the Greeks. Representatives from all fraternities and sororities compose the IFC and Panhellenic.

Both organizations help sponsor such events as the Greek Retreat, Alcohol Awareness and Greek Week each year. They work as a group to help unite all fraternities and sororities. They are also very involved in community activities.

This year they worked with the Lena Pope Home, Tarrant County Epilepsy Association and the YWCA Enchanted Forest. IFC President Steven Duble and Panhellenic President Salli Shields worked together to make these events a success.

Involvement in both of these groups not only builds leaders in the Greek system, but also in the University. As Troy Moore, the IFC advisor said, "TCU's strong Greek system is consistently developing young people into leaders." These groups give TCU students a chance to work with and help each other.

Sara D. Smith was the 1984 TCU Student Body President. She was very involved in TCU and it's many other organizations such as Alpha Delta Pi, Mortar Board, Student Foundation, Programming Council, 1984 National Phonothon Chairperson, Wesley Foundation, and Order of Omega. She has given freely of her time and talents to TCU. (Top) Joanne Lynch, Jean Hagerty, (bottom) Sara Smith, and Kelley Edison get excited about Alpha Delta Pi Rush.

Annie Connerly has made many contributions to TCU during her years here. She has been active in organizations such as Student Foundation, Mortar Board, Beta Gamma Sigma, Student Alcohol Awareness Committee, TCU Annual Fund Committee Chairman, Kappa Alpha Theta, Order of Omega and Bryson Club, However, Annie not only gave her time to TCU but also to the community of Fort Worth. She worked at Harolds, the TCU Accounting Department, and South Hills Christian Church. Her future plans find her remaining in Texas. Annie knows that a dog is a girl's best friend too.

Rosena Clarke is another "Featured" senior who has contributed a lot to TCU. She transfered here from College of the Bahamas in 1982 and since then has held many leadership positions. She was the 1983-84 president of the International Students Association, was a member of Alpha Phi Omega, the 1984-85 Mortar Board Treasurer, the Alumni Relations Chairman for Black Student Caucus, a member of the Social Work Club, and has been a resident assistant for Colby Residence Hall for the past two years. Her most embarrassing moment was being tapped for Mortar Board in Barcelona's A & P class. Her most regretted thing is living next to an elevator, and her most cherished things are the support of the Colby Hall Staff and the warmth of the Dean of Students and ISA.

The 1984-85 Feature Staff

Dear Editors and Staff,

There's so much to say that I hardly know where to begin. Right now it's 3 a.m. and it seems pretty typical for me to be typing this now! We've had some good times, some funny moments and some tough deadlines, but we pulled through. Because of your time and dedication, we have re-established the tradition of a TCU yearbook. This year was a very experimental one and it proved to be successful because of you. New things such as senior pictures and dorm group pictures were tried. Some were successful and some were not, respectively (Peter!).

Molly and Photographers - a very special thank you for being so patient when groups weren't there or ready and for doing very last minute assignments. My words of advice to you are "Don't have an out-of-focus day" and "Keep Flashin' 'em!"

For all of you who really didn't know what was going on; you learned didn't you? Kim and the Seniors staff: You did a wonderful job putting up with Smiley's photographer and getting the pages together. "Just Smile and say 'Yearbook!'"

Leslie, Rachael, Marla, and Susie -You've got talent, yes you do! And Always On Time! Thanks, it made my job a lot easier.

Peter and the Dorm/Greek staff -We had some real fun times! How about another Colby picture? Wait! We can't take the Jarvis picture yet, there's one person missing. How late is the Student Center open? Two boys and two girls!?

To the Sports staff - Spring semester kind of slipped away. Let's change the sports calendar next year! David, you're fantastic!! Good Luck next year, and just keep drawing those layouts!

Mike - You got to know most of the administration. Can I get a picture of you at your desk? You did a great job!

Judy - You just don't realize how much you helped me! If I had just one more thing to worry about, like the ledger book, I would have lost it! You're #1 with numbers.

Carol Ann - Am I crazy? Probably. But, "Don't Worry!" Let's take a tomato bath. How about stuffing some envelopes? Who says you're part time? On a more serious note, it has been wonderful working with you and getting to know you as a friend. We've really come a long way in just one year, but we did it! Thanks C.A.

To everyone - You are a super group of people. Together, we started a TCU yearbook tradition once again. You're all special to me.

Love,

Heather

TCU Spirit Can't Be Stopped

Students exhibited all kinds of spirit this year at TCU. From Purple Pride to academic excellence, spirits at TCU soared. People were more involved and excited than ever.

The year started off with Howdy Week, Fall Convocation, Homecoming and ended with such activities as Party in the Park, Joe King Carasco, spring formals, the University Awards Reception and graduation. School spirit and optimism flourished on the campus.

Friendships were made; the curriculum was learned; activities were successful; and many fun experiences will be remembered.

It was a unique year, unlike any other. Life at TCU was continually changing. It was a Cinderella year for the football team; it was a year of planning for the business school; it was a good year for the university as a whole.

Delta Delta sisters gather together at the Greek Week barbeque.

A little rain can't dampen the spirits of these TCU girls.

Seniors Jackie Kruppe and Tracy Hiteshwe are all set for a day of racquetball.

Some TCU students are fairly "Laid Back" during the spring semester.

Sigma Chi Andy Signorelli make his debute as the Chi Omega's Deck-a-Sig for Sigma Chi Derby Day.

Some Frogs had never seen snow until this winter in Fort Worth.

John Runyon and Donnie Thomas shared many good times as little and big brothers in Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Stephanie Hunter and Russell Guthrie rest on the new TCU sign.

Teresa Ralls and friends get a little crazy on Phi Kap Manday.

Colophon

Volume III of the Feature Yearbook was printed by Josten's American Yearbook Company, Topeka, Kansas. Opening, closing and the cover were done by Heather Steinle. All of the division page and sports layouts were done by David Martin. All other layouts were designed by the staff. The typestyle for most of the book is Times Roman. Contributing photographers were Craig Elders, Donna Lemmons

The 1985 Feature had a press rur 1300 copies. The yearbook staff wo to thank Adviser Carol Ann Lane all of her help and dedication.

We also extend our deepest apprection to Nelda Orman of Josten's for support and patience in helping us produce this book.
